

Be a leader on your team.

Help your company
connect the dots.

Learn how to get executive-level buy-in to protect employees and profits from domestic violence in the workplace.

What do corporate leaders think about domestic violence in the workplace?

66% think it's a major problem.

68% think their company's financial performance would benefit if addressed.

91% think that it affects both the private and working lives of their employees.

AND YET ONLY

13% think their companies should address workplace domestic violence.

When Domestic Violence Goes to Work conference

April 29, 2010

7:30 a.m.—3:00 p.m.

Loudermilk Center
Atlanta, Georgia

For more information,
call 404.870.9605 or e-mail info@padv.org

Attend this conference and learn:

- Legally defensible components for preparedness in addressing workplace violence.
- Why some men batter their intimate partners and how employers can hold their employees accountable.
- Best practices on how to support an employee who is a domestic violence survivor while simultaneously addressing performance issues, absences, and safety in the workplace.

Go to padv.org/Conference.asp to register today.

Presented by

Co-hosted by

Sponsors

Media Sponsors

Radio One

* In-kind sponsor